

Disease Pages — Medical-Reviewer Sign-off (one pass)

For: Dr. B.K. Murali (CMD) Prepared: 18 June 2026 Companion to: nephrology-dialysis-packet-2026-06-16.md (kidney-care content — still awaiting sign-off). Reviewing both together is fastest. Nothing changes on the site until you sign.

Why this matters (30-sec version)

AI search engines (ChatGPT, Gemini, Google AI Overviews) and Google itself weight a named, credentialed medical reviewer heavily before trusting/citing a health page. Our 8 disease pages currently show either a generic "Hope Hospital [Dept] Team" or, in two cases, a specialty mismatch. Assigning the right named specialist is the single biggest credibility (EEAT) upgrade for these pages — but only you can confirm who actually reviews each one.

⚠️ Two to fix first (current reviewer doesn't match the topic)

(Recommend reassigning both to a physician/cardiologist — see table.)

- Diabetes → currently credited to Dr. B.K. Murali (MS Ortho). An orthopedic surgeon reviewing a diabetes page reads as a mismatch to Google/AI.
- Hypertension → same — currently Dr. B.K. Murali.

Proposed reviewer per page — please confirm, edit, or strike

(All names are from our consultant roster. Assign only a doctor who genuinely vetted the content and is willing to be named publicly.)

What happens after you sign

For each confirmed page we will (1) update the visible byline to the named doctor and (2) add a matching `reviewedBy Physician` in the page's structured data (the machine-readable signal AI engines read). This is a wording/credit change only — no medical claims are altered.
